Current USC Homepage

The screenshot shows the USC University of Southern California homepage. At the top, there is a dark navigation bar with links for students, alumni, parents, faculty, employees, and sports. A search bar is located on the right side of this bar. Below the navigation bar is the USC logo and the text "USC University of Southern California". A secondary navigation bar contains links for about, administration, admission, academics, research, patient care, community, arts, and globalization. The location "Los Angeles 69°" is displayed on the right. The main content area features a large photograph of three people in costumes (a man in a top hat, a man in a pilot's uniform, and a woman) with their hands raised. A red text box over the photo reads "Outside the comfort zone" and contains a short paragraph about USC's athletic director. Below the main photo are three smaller images: a portrait of a man, a portrait of another man, and a photo of children at a book festival. A banner for the "Los Angeles Times Festival of Books" is also visible, dated April 20-21.

Holdings:

The University Archives is the repository for the records of enduring value officially made or received by the University of Southern California, and for other materials of historical value related to the functions of the University. The University Archives collects the following types of materials:

- Official records of historical importance emanating from any unit of the University including administrative offices, academic divisions, schools, departments, organized research units, the Academic Senate, University committees, etc.
- Publications emanating from any unit of the University, including catalogs handbooks, program announcements, directories, commencement and stage production programs, art exhibition catalogs, research publications, newsletters, and miscellaneous brochures and posters.
- Records of individual faculty and staff created in their official capacities in the University. Diaries, lecture notes, professional correspondence, and unpublished manuscripts of members of the faculty and staff may be included in the Archives. Although materials not created in an official capacity are regarded as personal papers, they often contain valuable information about the University.
- Historical papers related to the University that are worthy of preservation.
- The records and publications of University supported or affiliated organizations, including groups such as Town and Gown, General Alumni Association, and the Friends of the Library.
- The records and publications of student and alumni organizations and groups, and the publications edited by students, including newsletters, correspondence, minutes, newspapers, yearbooks, literary journals, flyers, and other items of interest.
- Photographic material, including prints and negatives of still and motion pictures relating to the campus, buildings, faculty, staff, students, events, and life of the University.
- Other audio-visual material, including microforms, videotapes, audiotapes, and discs of University events, programs, speeches, interviews, etc.
- Cartographic material and blueprints created as part of the official function of an academic department or service unit of the University.
- An Archives reference collection of works published by or about USC.
